GOP primary for sheriff to be contested

Flint to challenge incumbent Thomas

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Republican primary in May will include a contested race for Jefferson County Sheriff. Ben Flint filed his candidacy to run against incumbent Sheriff Dave Thoma ahead of the filing deadline at noon on Friday.

"I am ready to answer the call," Flint said. "I have been on the front lines overseas and here at home. I believe leaders must be accountable to their team and to the citizens, I'm ready for the challenges our next sheriff will face."

Flint, a 2001 graduate of Madison Consolidated High School, served in the U.S. Coast Guard with two tours in Iraq. He began his law enforcement career in Florida and then returned to Jefferson County where he has worked for the Madison Police Department and the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office. He is currently employed at the IKE power plant.

Democrat Tim Davis had already filed for sheriff earlier this month, ensuring that there will also be a contested race for the office in the November general election.

Several candidates have also filed for Town of Hanover offices this week. There were two filings for the at-large seats on town council where two will be elected

Chicago Blues Master coming to town

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

Chicago blues player Keith Scott is coming back to town this weekend, with performances at Mad Paddle on Friday and Saturday. He'll also be teaching a Blues Master Class on Saturday at 4 p.m. at The SPOT on Mulberry Street. But how he originally found Indiana's Music City is a fascinating story in its own right.

Remember back during the thick of the pandemic, when most music venues were completely shut down? Musicians all over the country were going stir crazy, unable to perform and share their talents. Bluesman Keith Scott couldn't find any gigs in the Windy City, so he decided to cast a wider net to see if there was anywhere he could play.

"This guy calls me out of the blue and says he wants to come to Madison and play," relates Jerry Wade, owner of Mad Paddle Brewery. "He says he's a Chicgo-based blues guy, but COVID has things shut down up there and he's just looking to play somewhere, anywhere.

"Well, I looked him up online and he's the real deal. He's been up in Chicago since the early 80s, so he's rubbed shoulders and played with many of the legends of the genre. I say, Keith, I'd love to have you down here, but I don't think we can afford you.

"And he says, don't worry about that. I just need to get out of town. I need to play in front of a live audience. We can work out the cost. So he comes to Madison, and he plays, and he's amazing, just as you'd expect. But then something else happens, not totally unexpected.

Handout

Keith Scott will perform at Mad Paddle on Friday and Saturday and conduct a Blues Master Class for aspiring musicians at The SPOT, 326 Mulberry St. in downtown Madison.

"He gets Madisonized! I'd brought Danny Lee Cook in to play bass for his gig, and he discovers Madison has this huge wealth of musical talent. He stays at the Riverboat Inn and goes hiking at Clifty Falls. By the end of the weekend he's completely enchanted with our town.

"I had him back to play a second time a while back, and that's the time Michael Fortunato arranged for Keith to give a Blues Master Class for aspiring musicians."

"That first class was amazing," continues Fortunato, himself a noted saxophonist and woodwind player on our local music scene. We did it at The SPOT on Mulberry Street, which is the office and meeting space of the Madison Area Arts Alliance.

"Rusty Bladen showed up for that first class, and he will be the first to tell you, he's not really a blues guy. But by the end of the class Keith had Rusty and all the students totally captivated by his style of heavy Chicago blues.

"So now Keith is coming back for a third visit to play this Friday and Saturday, and we thought it only fitting to get him to do the class again. We will meet at The SPOT on Mulberry at 4:00 on Saturday. And Rusty is joining Keith as a presenter this time, which is so cool.

"The class is open to anyone with a suggested donation of $10, and you don't have to be a musician to enjoy it. Keith is a great storyteller about his time on the Chicago blues scene, and his blues instruction is a delight

Local officials make plans in preparation for winter storm

Threat of ice causing concern

BY BOB DEMAREE

With a winter storm bearing down on Madison and the region today through Friday, Jefferson County officials gathered Wednesday morning to prepare safety measures and organize their response to the storm.

Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency director Troy Morgan said the National Weather Service (NWS) placed the county under a winter storm watch with an ice storm warning beginning at 1 a.m. Thursday and continuing through Friday morning. With moderate to heavy rainfall forecast — ranging from 2.5 to 3.5 inches on Wednesday into Thursday along with falling temperatures — Morgan said precipitation will likely begin to freeze between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. and will create a wintry mix of freezing rain and sleet before possibly turning to snow by Thursday night.

Morgan said the NWS told him to prepare for up to a one-quarter inch of ice and 4 inches of snow, with the worst case scenario being a half-inch of ice, and 4-8 inches of snow.

"It all depends on how far the jet stream pushes it south," Morgan said.

The snow is expected taper off Friday morning, and the front head out around 10 a.m. on Friday morning. However, that much ice and snow could lead to power outages and tree damage as freezing rain weighs down limbs and utility lines and creates difficult to impossible driving conditions Thursday night into Friday morning.

Morgan said he's most concerned about ice on power lines and trees, and possible power outages that might cause, leaving most homes without power and heat. He said Madison Township, Hanover Township and Kent fire department all have generators and will be available to shelter residents whose homes may lose power and the number to call for a shelter location is 812-274-3999.

Additionally, Madison Fire Chief Bill DeVries said most of the city fire stations have primarily gas heat, as was noted by Dupont and Rykers' Ridge fire departments, and should be able to shelter those with power issues in their homes. He said the Salvation Army also provides long-term

Up to one-half inch of ice was forecast for the region today followed by possible snowfall. The storm, which is expected to disrupt travel and lead to power outages from broken tree limbs and utility lines, is scheduled to arrive this morning and continue through Friday.

Sulky sister wants to visit

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My sister and I are in our sixties. We are less than a year apart in age but have never really been close emotionally.

We had a rough childhood, in which it was all about survival. Once we were adults, we both moved away and only saw each other a few times a year.

I married my current husband over 20 years ago. He is the kind of person you either love or dislike. My sister dislikes him.

About 10 years ago, I moved about 2,000 miles from where my sister, "Jan," lives to take a job that I really enjoyed. Shortly after I moved, Jan informed me that her daughter was getting married. I love my niece very much, but having recently moved and started a new job, I decided not to go to the wedding and told my sister this. She has never forgiven me and brings it up every time I see her. What's more, she blames it on my husband and makes all kinds of rude comments toward him.

Now coming to the point. I have been diagnosed with cancer. I may not have many years left, and Jan wants to visit me. I love her, but at this point, I am protecting myself from negativity and drama. Our last visit really ended badly, and I know I can't deal with that now. Jan says "she's at a point in her life where she says what she wants no matter who likes it."

Please help me. I don't know how to tell my sister that I don't want to see her, but I can't deal with her nasty comments and living in the past. — Living for Today

Dear Living: My heart goes out to you, and I commend you for your thoughtfulness in this trying time.

Things like terminal illnesses have a way of putting things in perspective. I am guessing that when Jan heard the news of your diagnosis, she forgot all about your absence at the wedding and her dislike of your husband. Your shared past must dwarf these petty disagreements.

There are times when it's appropriate to distance yourself from certain family members, especially when you're protecting your mental or physical health. But is there not a piece of you that wants to reconcile with your sister? Allow Jan to visit on the condition that she leaves her negativity at home, 2,000 miles away.

Dear Annie: You were right on the money to tell the "Mother-in-Law Who Wants to Keep Her Ears Clean" to tell that gossipy mom to keep her daughter's business to herself. Hopefully, "Clean Ears" informs her daughter-in-law of her mother's constant gossip. That was my mother to a T, gossiping about me at family functions, and I wish my in-laws told her to mind her own business.

When my mother-in-law just ignored it, my mother took the silence as acceptance. Soon, my mother went further and started to tell others at family events. Unfortunately, in order to stop it, we couldn't invite her any longer to get-togethers. — Thank You for Looking Out

Dear Looking Out: Gossip usually comes back to bite us. If we don't speak up to stop it, then we are just enabling it to continue. Thanks for this reminder.

We cannot shake our weekend intruder

Dear Annie: Please say something about the inadequacy of texting for true communication. My sister is addicted to texting and will no longer use email or the telephone to communicate. All warmth, tone of voice and laughter are lost. Often I can't type a response to her first text without her sending me a second text, which makes for a confusing, nonlinear conversation. Miscommunication and hurt feelings run rampant.

I think texting is fine for short, informational sentences, but not for true communication. Several of us were recently involved in a back-and-forth exchange where one correspondent accidentally typed in the wrong tense of a verb. A huge misunderstanding followed, with hurt feelings and anger. It took a dozen subsequent texts to straighten it out. Had we been speaking, it would have been resolved in seconds!

I urge adults to talk to each other rather than text if they have something meaningful to say. Texting limits true communication and connection. — Anti-Texting

Dear Anti-Texting: Thank you for this reminder. It's true that texting is no substitute for face-to-face (or at least voice-to-voice) communication. I'm printing your letter in the hopes that it inspires some readers to pick up the phone and call their loved ones.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My husband and I have a vacation cabin two hours from our hometown. We go there almost every weekend year-round.

There are four bedrooms, one for each of our grown kids to stay in when they visit. My husband's divorced best friend constantly just shows up on the weekends without notice.

Sometimes my husband and I would like to have a quiet, relaxing weekend alone. My husband understands how uncomfortable it makes me feel, but he doesn't want to hurt his friend's feelings. I feel like my hospitality is completely over with this constant weekend guest. How would you handle this? — Couple's Crowded Cabin

Dear Crowded Cabin: My hospitality and patience would be waning, too. What should be a relaxing oasis space for you and your family seems to have turned into this man's timeshare.

No length of friendship with someone makes it OK to be their rude houseguest. Ask your husband to lay down some firmer boundaries with his friend. While you two are more than happy to host his friend at the cabin from time to time, perhaps his visits should be limited to a dinner or one overnight max for the weekend — and not every weekend. This compromise allows time for your husband to visit with his friend and enjoy time alone with you and the kids. And, of course, any visits the best friend plans on making should always be proposed to you and your husband in advance.

sheltering while the Red Cross assists with long-term shelter needs.

Hanover Town Marshal Shane Caldwell said the Community Center at Hanover Park could also be opened as a shelter if that location does not lose power. The building's heat is electric and is susceptible outages like many of the town's homes.

County Health Department Administrator Tammy Monroe cautioned that while shelters may offer a warm place to ride out a power outage they do raise levels of concern for COVID-19 exposure by having multiple people from different families sharing a shelter space.

"We're still at 37.1% positivity rate" for COVID-19, Monroe said, recommending that those who group shelter wear masks and use hand sanitizer.

The combination of ice and snow and falling temperatures — and possible downed trees and utility lines — provides a difficult scenario for road crews trying to keep highways passable for emergency vehicles and others

The highway department is "about as defenseless as anybody with pure ice," County Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips said. "We can't navigate very well either, but we will certainly do the best we can. The biggest concern is getting to down trees and power lines."

The Indiana Department of Transportation's Southeast District has issued a full call-out ahead the storm with the Madison Sub District gearing up 32 trucks to respond to the emergency.

In addition, Madison Consolidated Schools has announced that all Madison schools will be virtual on Thursday and will most likely also go virtual Friday but that decision has not yet been made.

School on Thursday is closed at Prince of Peace Catholic Schools, Canaan Academy , Trimble County and Carroll County and Prince of Peace's Golden Shamrock Award Mass has been rescheduled for Feb. 10.

to witness. But if you do play guitar and would like a little hands-on participation, by all means bring your instrument.

"I strongly encourage everyone to go see Keith perform, either Friday or Saturday. Actually, the Friday show could be very special because our very own blues legend Jimmy Davis will be joining him.

"Keith's style comes out of the blues shuffle tradition, but it's the heavier, foot stomping version of that genre. And it's got a little bit of that Rust Belt rock & roll spirit mixed in, kind of down and dirty. It will get you up and out of your seat, that much I can promise you!"

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

There are a bunch of great live music options this weekend, but two in particular jump out at me. The first is on Friday at Madison Presbyterian Church, where mezzo soprano Hanna Penn will be performing. These shows, brought to town by the Madison Performing Arts Foundation, are always top notch, and always free. Go on YouTube and search "Hannah Penn Mezzo" if you want a little preview. The other show you should strongly consider is Rusty Bladen at The Taproom on Saturday. Rusty doesn't play a lot of local shows because he's out of town so much, and he rarely plays a small venue like The Tap. Rusty's brand of intimate, infectiously upbeat rock and roll is best enjoyed up close. It will be a special night, I can guarantee it.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

Silver Creek uses quick start to beat Madison

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

SELLERSBURG — Madison hung with Silver Creek for as long as it could but the Cubs simply did not have the offensive firepower to keep up, falling 83-71 in boys basketball Tuesday on the road.

With its season leading scorer, Kaden Oliver, watching from the other bench, Madison went back and forth with the Dragons for nearly a quarter and a half but Silver Creek pulled away. The Dragons, who led 29-13 after the first quarter, took a commanding 55-29 lead into halftime and led by as many as 30 in the second half before a late charge by the Cubs made the final score respectable.

Madison coach Adam Stotts was philosophical about the loss. With so many games packed into such a short time frame, the Cubs simply haven't had too many chances to prepare for games in practice.

"We have so many games right now that we're doing a lot of just pregame practices, walking through stuff. And we had two guys that were out yesterday because of sickness," Stotts said. "We showed film and there's a bunch of things we still want to tweak but it's hard because we're running out of time. But one thing our guys do not do is quit and the young guys that came in in the last four or five minutes played their butts off."

> "The one thing I said to my coaches is that they will execute whatever we draw up and that's really one thing I'm really excited about. They have really high basketball IQ."

> Madison basketball coach

Oliver was sitting on the Dragons' bench after transferring to Silver Creek last week when his mother, Hannah, was hired as the school's assistant principal. He did not play because his transfer was being held up on Madison's end. As it turned out, the Dragons didn't need him.

Do-everything senior guard Brandon Northern scored 21 of his game-high 31 points in the first half as Silver Creek seized control of the game. Madison's Jackson Falconberry and Henry Grote did what they could to keep the Cubs in the game.

Grote scored 13 first-half points — hitting 4-of-6 from 3-point range — and finished with 15 points while Falconberry worked his way inside and finished with 25 points on 10-of-13 shooting. But the Cubs got only 11 points from their other three starters and Silver Creek pulled away.

David Campbell

The Dragons (7-8) got back-to-back baskets from Walker Hoffman and Zac Stricker to open the third quarter and give Silver Creek a 59-29 lead. The Dragons still led by 27 (69-42) after three quarters when they pulled their starters.

Madison took advantage of Creek's non-starters by ripping off 29 points over the final eight minutes. Many of those points came courtesy of the Cubs' young freshmen, with Quincy Reynolds, Adam Traylor, Mason Davis and Barron Welsh combining to score 21 of the 29 points in the fourth quarter.

"I think getting guys' confidence up is important for us. We want to Quincy to get more shots up so I'm glad that he got him up," Stotts said. "I thought Traylor played his butt off and was maybe the player of the game for us with five assists. Mason Davis comes in and hits two 3-pointers and fits right in. The one thing I said to my coaches is that they will execute whatever we draw up and that's really one thing I'm really excited about. They have really high basketball IQ."

Stricker scored 15 points for Silver Creek while Cameron Wheeler and Nate Davidson added 10 points each.

Madison, now 5-9 on the season, plays two more games this week. The Cubs travel to Seymour today and then host Batesville on Saturday.

Switzerland breaks away to beat South Decatur

BY JORDAN BEAR

Whatever Switzerland County coach Brooke Todd said to her team in between the third and fourth quarters Tuesday must have worked as the Pacers broke open a two-point game and pulled away for a 42-31 win over South Decatur in the opening round of Class 2A Girls Basketball Sectional at Southwestern.

"Obviously, could have been a little more sharp offensively but they did exactly what I wanted from them on the defensive end of the floor," Todd said.

It appeared the Pacers would put the game away by halftime after their suffocating defense limited South Decatur to just 11 first half points while Switzerland jumped ahead 21-11. The third quarter was a different story, however, as the Cougars came out on fire and slowly began chipping away at the Pacers' lead to eventually tie the game 23-23 late in the quarter.

A late bucket by Maddie Duvall salvaged a 25-23 lead for the Pacers heading into the fourth quarter but Todd knew the Cougars weren't just going to go away.

"I knew they weren't going to come out of halftime and just give up," Todd said. "They're a team that fights for an entire game. When you have a 10-point lead at half, that can quickly turn into a 5-point game or a 15-point game and they ended up tying it and made us have to work and continue to play hard."

Stephanie Hellmann

Switzerland County's Maddie Duvall battles for a loose ball during the Pacers' win over South Decatur in the sectional opener at Southwestern on Tuesday.

The Pacers answered that rally and made it very clear they were the superior team in the fourth quarter, jumping out quickly to an eight-point lead just two minutes into the period. South Decatur never got any closer and Switzerland pulled away for the 11-point win.

Todd said she knew her team was going to be fine heading into the final quarter.

"I could just see it in all of their eyes and I knew we were going to be fine," Todd said. "We were only up two but the team came out and basically said we're ending this game. I was proud of them staying composed and able to keep up the work defensively to help us win."

Senior Jessie Duvall led Switzerland with 15 points and six steals, giving her 270 in her career to break the school's career thefts record previously held by Todd. Twin sister Maddie Duvall had 12 points while Nora Hankins added two points and eight rebounds.

Brooke Somers scored eight points to pace South Decatur, which ends the season with a 4-17 record.

Switzerland, now 17-6 on the season, advances to the sectional semifinals on Friday where it will take on host Southwestern at 6 p.m. Todd knows playing the host school on their home court is never easy.

"I have no doubt that they are going to come out fired up and ready to play," Todd said. "However, I'm also very confident in my team and I know if we play well we should be just fine."

Burrow, Bengals are Super Bowl bound

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — When the Cincinnati Bengals went down 21-3 early in the second quarter of Sunday's AFC championship game, a third straight Super Bowl for the Kansas City Chiefs seemed inevitable.

The Bengals weren't feeling it, though. They'd been coming from behind and winning close games all season. What transpired was another incredible Bengals finish, this one propelling them to the Super Bowl for the first time since the 1988 season.

In the first half, Patrick Mahomes tossed three touchdown passes, and the Bengals went to the locker room at halftime down 21-10.

"Nobody blinked an eye," Cincinnati kicker Evan McPherson said. "We all thought that we were definitely going to come back and find a way to win. That's what we've done the whole year."

The Bengals clawed back in the second half, scoring 14 unanswered points and holding the Chiefs to just Harrison Butker's field goal as time ran out to tie the score at 24 and force overtime.

After Cincinnati safety Vonn Bell intercepted Mahomes in overtime, quarterback Joe Burrow put McPherson in position for the 31-yard field goal, the rookie kicker's second game-winner in as many playoff games.

Who expected this?

Burrow was coming off major offseason knee surgery. Cincinnati was just 7-6 after Week 14. The Bengals finally managed to win three in a row in December, a streak that coincided with the late-season struggles of the Browns and Ravens. They won the AFC North with a 10-7 record.

Burrow and wide receiver Ja'Marr Chase, the first-round pick in the 2021 draft, emerged as a reliable and resilient tandem. A defense that had been up and down got the job done with sacks and critical interceptions in the past two playoff games.

Coach Zac Taylor said the season started with many uncertainties, but it all came together at the right time.

"I certainly think that when we got to December that the feeling in the locker was we have the ability to play with anybody in this league," Taylor said Monday. "And we all know, those of us who have been in the league a long time, you just have to get hot at the right time."

After the game, some of the players were still trying to get their heads around it.

"It's crazy, it still hasn't hit me yet," said receiver Tee Higgins, who had six catches for 103 yards. "It didn't feel real at all. It's crazy."

BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Gallatin pulls away to spoil Trimble homecoming

BY LAUREN HANEY

Trimble County fell to Gallatin County in the final minutes, 80-70, during the Raiders' boys basketball homecoming on Tuesday.

The game started with an early lead by Gallatin County but quickly became a back and forth struggle as each team traded the lead. Trimble held a one-point lead with seconds left in the first quarter, only to have it stolen when Hunter Kelley fouled on a last-second 3-point attempt by Gallatin's Zac Johnson. Johnson made two of the three free throws to push the Wildcats ahead 21-20 going into the second quarter.

Despite Gallatin foul trouble in the second frame, Trimble could not maintain a lead. The Raiders struggled from the free-throw line, going 3-for-10 in the first half, allowing the Wildcats to still lead 36-34 at the end of the second quarter.

The Raiders came out strong to start the the second half and made a six-point run to take the lead. However, a series of turnovers saw Trimble once again fall behind and remain there the remainder of the game.

Trimble began the fourth quarter trailing 56-54 but could not keep up with the Wildcats offensively. Gallatin's two-point lead quickly turned into a 10-point advantage, which in the end was the final margin.

Lauren Haney

Trimble County's Ethan Horn shoots over Gallatin County's Zac Johnson during the Raiders' basketball homecoming on Tuesday in Bedford.

Hunter Kelley was Trimble County's leading scorer with 20 points while Ethan Horn added 17 points, Tate Ogburn had 12, James Thomas Wilcoxson scored 11 and Dalton Penick had 10 points.

Gallatin also had five players in double figures with Mason Arnold scoring 15 points and pulling down 16 rebounds, Drake Skidmore scoring 15 points, Logan Riddle adding 14 and Kellen Dossett and Ashton Gullion scoring 11 points each. Dossett also had seven assists and Guillon dished out six assists.

Trimble, now 6-18 overall, falls to 2-7 in North Central Kentucky Conference play and 1-6 in 31st District play. The Raiders are scheduled to travel to Henry County on Friday and hosts St. Francis on Wednesday.

LADY RAIDERS BEAT GALLATIN

Trimble County picked up a conference and district win with a 37-36 victory over Gallatin County at home in girls basketball on Monday.

Payton Butters led the Raiders with 10 points while Gracie Jent and Danielle Craig scored eight points each. Addison Edmondson chipped in seven.

Trimble, now 3-18 overall, improves to 2-6 in NCKC play and 2-4 in the 31st District. The Raiders hosted Grant County on Wednesday and head to Henry County tonight. Trimble then plays at Owen County on Monday.

CARROLL BOYS LOSE TWO

Carroll County suffered losses on back-to-back days in boys basketball on Monday and Tuesday.

The Panthers lost 96-48 at home to South Oldham on Monday and 62-58 at Owen County on Tuesday.

Carroll, now 1-21 overall, 1-8 NCKC and 1-7 in the 31st District, travels to Gallatin County on Friday and heads to Villa Madonna on Saturday.

LADY PANTHERS FALL TO DAYTON

Carroll County dropped a 62-43 decision at Dayton in girls basketball on Tuesday.

The Panthers were scheduled to play Owen County on Monday but that game was postponed after Owen won the All "A" Classic State Championship over the weekend.

Carroll then picked up the Dayton game as a late addition to the schedule for Tuesday.

Carroll, now 8-12 on the season, faced off against Gallatin County on Wednesday in a game that was moved up a day due to impending inclement weather. The Panthers host Oldham County on Saturday.

NFL has historic day of comebacks on conference championship Sunday

BY JOSH DUBOW
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Double-digit leads in the second half with a berth in the Super Bowl at stake are typically pretty safe in the NFL.

That wasn't the case on conference championship Sunday when the Kansas City Chiefs and San Francisco 49ers both blew leads in the latest in chapter for franchises with a history of playoff collapses.

The comebacks by Cincinnati in the AFC title game and the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC title game mark the first time in 23 years that both Super Bowl participants overcame deficits of at least 10 points in the conference title game.

Denver did it against the Jets in the 1998 season, and Atlanta did it against Minnesota. In all, there had been only eight games in the Super Bowl era when teams overcame a double-digit lead in the second half of the conference title game before Sunday.

The Chiefs led Cincinnati 21-3 in the first half before losing 27-24 in overtime, marking just the fourth time in NFL history a home team has blown a lead that big in the postseason.

It last happened four years ago, when Kansas City also led 21-3 before losing 22-21 to Tennessee in the wild-card round. The only other franchise to do it was the 49ers, who blew a 20-point lead to Detroit in the 1957 playoffs and an 18-point lead to Dallas in 1972.

Those weren't the only two playoff collapses for the Chiefs under coach Andy Reid as they also blew a 28-point, second-half lead at Indianapolis in a wild-card loss following the 2013 season.

The Niners held their 17-7 lead over the Rams into the fourth quarter before losing 20-17, becoming just the fourth team to lose in this round after leading by at least 10 points in the final quarter, with Jacksonville the last to blow it in the 2017 AFC title game loss to New England.

This comes two years after coach Kyle Shanahan's Niners blew a 10-point lead in the fourth quarter of a Super Bowl loss to the Chiefs. Shanahan was also the offensive coordinator in Atlanta when the Falcons blew a 28-3 second-half lead in the Super Bowl to New England six years ago.

The only other team to lose a playoff game in the past seven seasons when leading by at least 10 points after three quarters was the Chiefs in that wild-card loss to Tennessee in the 2017 season.

The NFL had another weekend of tight games with both conference championships decided by a field goal. That comes one week after all four games were decided with a score on the final play in the divisional round.

The average margin of victory the past two weeks has been 3.5 points per game, the lowest combined mark for the divisional round and conference title games since the merger. The previous low was 6.7 points per game in 2003.

Eight of the first 12 playoff games have been decided by seven points or fewer, tied with the 2010 season for the most games that close in a postseason.

Bengals to arrive in L.A. 5 days ahead of Super Bowl

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati weather isn't getting any friendlier, so the Super Bowl-bound Bengals plan to arrive in Los Angeles five days early to prepare for the Feb. 13 game.

The Bengals will land on Feb. 8. They'll practice at UCLA's Drake Stadium.

The temperature in L.A. should be in the 70s by the time the Bengals get back at it next week.

Although it was an unseasonable 60 degrees and pleasant in southern Ohio on Tuesday, nobody is fooled. A storm heading this way is expected to hit the area with freezing rain and then snow on Wednesday and Thursday.

Next week will bring highs around the freezing mark in Cincinnati, still not the best conditions in which to prepare for a game that will be played in SoFi Stadium in Inglewood, California.

"I think it will be important that we (go early), but it's always easy to transition from not-so-great weather to good weather," Bengals defensive coordinator Lou Anarumo said Tuesday. "Doesn't take long to figure that part out, and the guys will get accustomed to that quick.

"I think it will be good to get the lay of the land, but when the weather is good like that it's an easier transition than going to to play in 8, 9, 10 degrees or something like that," he said.

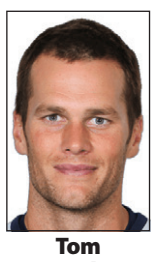
The 2-year-old SoFi Stadium is, of course, the home field of the NFC champion Los Angeles Rams, as well as the Los Angeles Chargers.

It's the second straight year one of the Super Bowl participants ended up playing in their home stadium. The venues are set years in advance.

League loses its star, yet Brady's legacy lives on in NFL

BY ARNIE STAPLETON
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Tom Brady's retirement at age 44 leaves the NFL without its iconic quarterback, best player, biggest star and fiercest competitor.



Tom Brady

With Brady deciding to focus on his family instead of football, the league loses a giant who flourished in a perfect storm of rules changes designed to protect passers, an increased focus on nutrition and personal offseason training and a dogged determination to thwart both logic and time.

Brady only got better with age and redefined greatness in an unparalleled career that seemed like it might go on forever.

And yet, it some ways he's not leaving us at all.

You'll see his imprint on the NFL whenever you tune into a football game, beginning with the Super Bowl on Feb. 13.

Like other young quarterbacks including Patrick Mahomes, Josh Allen, Justin Herbert, Dak Prescott and Lamar Jackson, Cincinnati's Joe Burrow came of age in the shadow of Brady's brilliance.

"And I guarantee you these young guys, they all admired something in Tom Brady that they attempted to put into their own game," said Brady's former teammate and cornerback Aqib Talib. "Whether it was his throwing motion, his competitiveness or how he took care of his body, some aspect of their game has something to do with Tom Brady.

"If you're an NFL quarterback anywhere from 20 to 30 years old right now, man you got a piece of Tom Brady in you, guaranteed."

That's why "the NFL is itself is going to be fine," concurred Hall of Famer Champ Bailey, whose 100-yard interception return handed Brady his first loss in 11 playoff games back in 2006.

"But I think what we're gonna miss is that level of consistency, professionalism, and nobody did it better," Bailey said. "I think a lot has to do with how he was raised. You know, it was him as a kid, his mindset, being around Bill Belichick and his mindset.

"And it's crazy how he had an MVP season and he's retiring. It's almost like Kobe hitting 60 and going out."

The last NFL player born in the 1970s went out on top — he's the defending Super Bowl champion the Bengals or Rams hoist the Lombardi Trophy in wo weeks.

Just think, Brady could already have a bust in Canton had he retired in his late 30s like his chief rival Peyton Manning did. But Brady went 70-24 in his 40s, winning his sixth Super Bowl with the Patriots and seventh one with the Buccaneers.

Brady led the NFL in yards passing (5,316), touchdown throws (43), completions (485) and attempts (719) in 2021, but the Buccaneers lost at home to the Los Angeles Rams.

While the young quarterbacks try to forge their own legacy with Brady no longer in their way, it's a safe bet none will come close to his seven Super Bowl rings because there are so many good quarterbacks in his wake.

"I really do believe he's above the standard," Bailey said. "I don't see how a quarterback in the future would be more accomplished than he is. But the NFL will be fine. We got some great young talent and I'm sure Tom Brady would even say it himself. That divisional round was an unbelievable weekend of football.

"And it just goes to show you the quarterback talent is still there and probably even better than before," Bailey said. "And the funny thing is these guys all grew up watching Tom Brady. If these dudes do half of what he did it's a tremendous career."

It's not like it was all give and no take with Brady, who also took something from the vanguard of young quarterbacks. He embraced social media and endorsement opportunities he shunned earlier in his career, showing the public a softer, humorous, often sarcastic side that endeared him to millions who had always associated him with the scowling Belichick.

He became more beloved across the league much like Manning had in the twilight of his career that featured an epic 17 matchups with Brady.

"I think everybody enjoyed the old Tom Brady more than the young one," Bailey said. "What he did toward the end of his career was he engaged his fans. I think that's what was missing from a young Tom Brady. He was in this box and he never really came out.

"Now, I think that made him who he was, but his engagement level with fans increased 1 million% in the past few years. And people really got to know him, saw he was hilarious at times. People appreciate you more when they can see you relaxed and having a good time."

Like when he tossed the Lombardi Trophy from one boat to another boat in the Bucs' Super Bowl celebration last year.

"I always knew Tom Brady was like that. He's sarcastic just like his social network was. That's his real personality. Yeah, just super sarcastic, super fun," Talib said.

"If you wanted to create the ultimate football player, you would create him just like Tom Brady."

WHAT'S WORKING

The Bengals seem to be able to get what they need to get when they need to get it. In the second half, they needed the defense to disguise some looks and get after Mahomes, one of the league's most-elusive quarterbacks.

They needed running back Joe Mixon to break some his carries for more yards.

They needed Burrow to make some more magic, and the second-year quarterback delivered.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

The Bengals have been a slow-starting team all season. That usually causes the team to play from behind. It's exciting and hard to argue with the results when they get them, but the Bengals surely would like to be far enough ahead at the end to keep from dropping all the pressure on the shoulders of their 22-year-old kicker.

STOCK UP

The pass protection was better after Burrow was sacked nine times in the divisional-round win over Tennessee. He was better at evading it this time, too. He was sacked just once and hit three other times. He had two third-down scrambles in the fourth quarter that moved the chains at critical times.

STOCK DOWN

Nobody was happier about the Bengals' success than tight end C.J. Uzomah, who has been with the team through five poor seasons. He had the best season of his career and became a sure-handed, go-to receiver for Burrow. He was carted off with a knee injury in the first quarter.

INJURIES

Taylor said Monday that Uzomah has an MCL sprain and the outlook is "encouraging."

KEY NUMBER

12 — field goals made without a miss through three postseason games for McPherson, a rookie out of Florida.

NEXT STEPS

Stay focused amid the hysteria in Cincinnati and the avalanche of extra national attention the Bengals are about to get in the two-week run-up to the Feb. 13 Super Bowl against the Los Angeles Rams.

Taylor said travel plans haven't yet been finalized

Kentucky jumps to No. 5 in AP Top 25; Auburn, Gonzaga 1-2

BY AARON BEARD
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Auburn keeps winning, Kentucky is rising and that has the Southeastern Conference putting its imprint atop this week's The Associated Press men's college basketball poll.

Bruce Pearl's Tigers earned 49 of 61 first-place votes in Monday's new poll to extend the program's first stay at No. 1 for a second straight week, while John Calipari's Wildcats jumped to No. 5 for the program's highest ranking in the AP Top 25 in more than two years. The SEC has a pair of top-five teams for the first time in nearly three years.

Auburn (20-1) has won 17 straight games since losing a double-overtime game to Connecticut in November. The Tigers earned a narrow win at Missouri in their first game at No. 1 then followed with Saturday's home win against Oklahoma, not to mention the school reaching a deal with Pearl for an eight-year contract.

"It's been a good week," Pearl said with a chuckle after the Sooners win.

Kentucky (17-4) had the week's biggest jump, rising seven spots after winning by 18 at Kansas on Saturday. This marks the highest ranking for Kentucky since the 2019-20 season, when the Wildcats spent one week at No. 1 in the first regular-season poll and sat at No. 6 in early March.

"Every time we play like a team ... I don't think anybody can stop us," Wildcats big man Oscar Tshiebwe said after the Kansas win.

This marks the first time the SEC had two top-five teams since February 2019, when Kentucky was fourth and Tennessee was fifth.

THE TOP TIER

Gonzaga remained at No. 2 and earned the other 12 first-place votes. UCLA climbed to No. 3, followed by Purdue — which claimed its first No. 1 ranking earlier this season. The Bruins opened the year at No. 2 and have now spent 11 weeks inside the top five, the Boilermakers nine.

CHAMPS' STUMBLE

Houston and Arizona were next after Kentucky, followed by reigning national champion Baylor, which has stumbled after a 15-0 start and a 21-game winning streak that began with last year's title run.

Baylor spent five weeks at No. 1 but has split its last six games after Saturday's loss at Alabama.

And the Bears' four-spot slide marked the first time the Big 12 hasn't had at least one team in the top five since the final poll of the 2018-19 season.

Baylor remains the only team in the country to rank in the top 10 of KenPom's adjusted offensive efficiency (118.8 points per 100 possessions) and adjusted defensive efficiency (89.1).

RISING

While Kentucky had the biggest jump, No. 18 Illinois also had a notable move by climbing six spots following last week's win against Michigan State. In all, nine teams rose in Monday's poll.

SLIDING

Kansas fell five spots to No. 10 after its loss to Kentucky, but it was No. 25 LSU that took the week's biggest tumble. The Tigers fell six spots after losing at TCU.

No. 19 Southern California and No. 22 Tennessee joined Arizona and Baylor in falling four spots. In all, nine teams fell from last week's rankings.

STATUS QUO

Six teams remained locked in place for a second straight week, including No. 9 Duke, No. 11 Wisconsin, No. 16 Ohio State and No. 21 Xavier.

WELCOME BACK

Texas re-joined the poll at No. 23 as the lone new addition following a one-week absence in a season that saw the Longhorns open at No. 5.

FAREWELL (FOR NOW)

Davidson fell out of the poll from No. 25 after earning the program's first AP Top 25 ranking since March 2015.

CONFERENCE WATCH

The Big 12, Big East and Big Ten tied for the national lead with five ranked teams each in Monday's poll. The SEC has four, followed by the Pac-12's three. The Atlantic Coast, West Coast and American Athletic conferences each had one ranked team.

Hoosiers longtime sports PA announcer Crabb retires at 71

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Chuck Crabb, the public address announcer for Indiana men's basketball games and many other Hoosiers sports for over four decades, is calling it a career.

The 71-year-old Crabb announced his retirement on Monday.

The decision takes effect immediately.

Crabb and his booming, baritone voice became a fixture at football and men's basketball games after replacing Bert Laws in 1977.

Over the next 45 years, Crabb added men's soccer games, women's basketball games and men's and women's track and field competitions to his repertoire.

The 1973 Indiana graduate also worked at the Los Angeles and Atlanta Olympics in 1984 and 1996, called men's World Cup games in 1994 and women's World Cup games in 1999.

He served in other capacities at the Pan American Games, American sports and Olympics festivals, the U.S. National Track and Field Championships and the U.S. Track and Field Olympic Trials.

But it was Hoosiers basketball where Crabb made his biggest impact.

In Bloomington, he introduced players and coaches with a booming, baritone, almost emotionless voice that treated everyone the same.

And at a time pro and college teams increasingly adopted dramatic, pitched introductions, Crabb was a throwback.

Students even took pleasure in prompting Crabb to make his traditional gameday announcement of fan misbehavior potentially leading to technical fouls.Through the years, he saw it all and called games for two national championship teams.

He even had a courtside seat for coach Bob Knight's infamous chair-throwing incident and then Knight's return to Assembly Hall in 2020, just before the COVID-19 pandemic took root across America.

Crabb grew up in Brazil, Indiana, a rural town between Indianapolis and Terre Haute, and had been an associate athletic director since 1990.

He received the Indiana University Bicentennial Medal in 2020, the Indiana Univerity Foundation President's Award in 2010 and the Jerry F. Tardy Price of Indiana Award in 2006.

NC downs Louisville in frantic OT ending

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Brady Manek scored 24 points and Armando Bacot scored 19 points and grabbed a career-high 22 rebounds and North Carolina beat Louisville in a 90-83 overtime thriller on Tuesday night.

Leaky Black's 3-pointer with 2:10 left in the extra session broke an 81-all tie and North Carolina led the rest of the way.

The final 1:10 was highlighted by a pair of technical fouls against Louisville that led to four-made foul shots for North Carolina to seal the win.

Jae'Lyn Withers was whistled for a dead ball contact technical foul when officials ruled he shoved Bacot to the floor after the whistle blew when Bacot and Louisville's Matt Cross got tied up for a loose ball with 1:10 left. Caleb Love sank the technicals for an 86-81 Carolina lead.

Noah Locke responded with two foul shots for the Cardinals with 59 seconds to go to reduce the deficit to three. North Carolina turned it over, and on the Cardinal's ensuing possession, Cross' deep, straight-on 3 attempt hit the rim and ricocheted to the left baseline. On the bounce, however, Louisville's Syndey Curry was called for an offensive foul boxing out Bacot. In his irate response, Cardinals interim head coach Mike Pegues was called for a technical foul upon slamming his hand on the scorer's table.

Love then sank two technical foul shots and Bacot made 1 of 2 foul shots for the whistle drawn on Curry for an 89-83 advantage. Love made 1 of 2 with five seconds to go for the game's final margin.

In regulation, after Bacot threw down a dunk to give North Carolina a 55-45 lead with 12:35 remaining, Louisville went on a shooting spree when El Ellis sank three 3s' and Cross another to give Louisville a 57-55 advantage. Neither team led by more than four points to end regulation.

Withers came up with spectacular block on R.J. Davis' wide-open layup attempt to send it to overtime tied at 74.

Ellis scored a career-high 25 points with a career-high five 3s for Louisville.

Earlier in the day, Louisville's athletic board executive committee approved a new contract for Pegues that includes a guaranteed bonus of $340,000 and other incentives.

Pegues took over the Cardinals last week for the second time this season after coach Chris Mack and the school agreed to part ways.

Pegues guided Louisville to a 5-1 start while Mack was suspended and began his second stint with a 74-65 loss to No. 9 Duke on Saturday.

Louisville was without leading scorer and rebounder Malik Williams (10 ppg and 8.7 rpg) due to what Pegues described as an "indefinite" suspension. On his radio show on Monday night, Pegues called the undisclosed suspension "one game for now."

Jackson's breakout game sends Pacers past Clippers

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers rookie Isaiah Jackson celebrated his best game of the season with an unexpected bath.

He savored every precious second of the ice cold water.

Jackson scored 26 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and posted his first double-double in his first career start, leading the Pacers past the Los Angeles Clippers 122-116 on Monday night.

"It surprised me because I didn't know the guys were going to do that and I'm not going to lie, it was very cold," he said. "That's the first time it's happened to me and it's something I'm going to remember forever."

The first-round draft pick out of Kentucky spent most of Indiana's first 51 games scrapping for minutes and avoiding fouls. But with Indiana's top three centers out of action, the Pacers challenged Jackson and he impressed everyone.

Jackson was 12 of 19 from the field, posted season highs in points and rebounds, blocked two shots and even made a 3-pointer all without being called for Wa single foul.

Duane Washington Jr. added 16 points, including four 3s in the fourth quarter, to help the short-handed Pacers earn their second win in six games.

Rick Carlisle became the second coach in the franchise's NBA history to win 200 career games. Frank Vogel had 250 wins in five seasons with the team and this one looked awfully good to Carlisle.

"He did such a great job in every area tonight," Carlisle said, referring to Jackson. "When we talked about him in the draft, this is what we were talking about and this is a dimension this team hasn't had."

The worn-out Clippers also were caught off guard. Amir Coffey finished with 27 points and Reggie Jackson had 21 as their five-game winning streak against Indiana came to an end.

"To go 4-4 on this tough trip was pretty good for us. It is what it is and now we have to go back and try to regroup," coach Tyronn Lue said. "They played well and Isaiah Jackson did a hell of a job."

Neither team was near full strength.

Injured All-Stars Paul George and Kawhi Leonard were out again for the Clippers, and the Pacers played without two-time All-Star Domantas Sabonis, who entered the COVID-19 health and safety protocols earlier Monday.

Not surprisingly, it turned this game into a grind-it-out contest.

Indiana took a 30-27 lead after one quarter and a 60-55 halftime advantage.

Even when it appeared the Clippers had taken control with a 14-5 run late in the third period, they couldn't put it away. Instead, the Pacers answered with 10 straight points to retake an 84-82 lead — only to give it back on Nicolas Batum's 3 to end the third.

Batum opened the fourth with another 3 to make it 88-84 and this time Indiana answered with 12 points in a row, including three consecutive 3s by Washington, to make it 99-89. Los Angeles never led again.
